CEOs and executives from CMS, Children's Hospital Boston, Tenet Healthcare and Cleveland Clinic to join panel discussions on latest challenges and solutions for providers

WASHINGTON, D.C. February 24, 2012 – As hospitals and health systems seek new and effective models for providing quality care while controlling costs, the Hospitals and Health Systems Summit at the 9th Annual World Health Care Congress will convene senior leaders to address urgent issues for providers, including transitioning into an ACO business model, fostering innovation in the delivery of care, care coordination, physician engagement and reinventing primary care.

Hospital, health system, physician group practice and integrated delivery network CEOs, CIOs, CMOs, CFOs and others will exchange strategies with their peers on replicable and innovative delivery models, physician alignment and reimbursement, and efficient resource utilization to achieve operational excellence and successful reform implementation.

Specifically, the summit will address:

- Economic imperatives of changing delivery systems: profitability and sustainability in a reform environment
- Clinical integration, physician engagement and quality standards to deliver value-based care
- Delivering high value care: Business models that provide more coordinated, high-quality and cost-effective care
- Accelerating the pace of innovation in the delivery of care – transforming patient-centered care
- Achieving operational excellence – matching resources and utilization to meet the new delivery paradigm
